

PETROEXPRO '16

3rd - 5th March

In this day and age, energy security is of utmost importance in driving our country's growth. The Oil and Gas sector especially plays a crucial role in controlling the developing factor. Petroexpro '16 is a joint initiative with the SPE Chennai Section, SPE and APG chapters of RGCE and the Dept. of Petroleum Engineering (RGCE) to venture into new areas of Hydrocarbon exploration and production. The principal areas of focus are Formation Evaluation, Sedimentology, NELP bidding, Remote Sensing, Structural Mapping, Log Interpretation, Reservoir Simulation and Prospect Generation.

This Fest will host a series of lectures on the first two days, presented by leading industrial and academic experts along with Paper and Poster presentations, Quiz and various other non-technical events. The third day comprises of a Geologic Field Trip to the Palar basin.

Rajiv Gandhi College of Engineering

Rajiv Gandhi College of Engineering, founded in 2001, is the first Institution in South India to offer an undergraduate degree in Petroleum Engineering. The college has pioneered ever since to enhance education in this field.

The Department of Petroleum Engineering has highly skilled faculty with adequate experience in the Oil and Gas sector. Reputed Industry experts from ONGC serve as visiting faculty too.

The first National Conference on Unconventional Hydrocarbon Resources was held by the Dept. of Petroleum Engineering, RGCE in March 2015 and it was a grand success. The conference paved the way to overcoming challenges in various unconventional fields.

Petroexpro '16 will host a consortium of talks and lectures on topics ranging from Formation Evaluation to HR Scenarios by Industry experts and prominent academic professionals.

The last date for submission of the full Paper is 22nd of February, 2016
